

EDWIN RAMUSI

Managing Director of the Ditmaster Group

Koe D'man (real name Moyahabo Edwin Ramusi) is a South African graphic designer, web designer, motivational speaker, educator, leadership adviser, inspiration consultant, politician and philanthropist. Founder of www.DitmasterGroup.com, he has worked with big names both individuals and companies, shared his insights and gift for inspiration across a variety of platforms, including appearances on radio shows. He has been featured in magazines, newspapers and is a frequent contributor to most people's life.

Koe D'man is a talkative person by nature, who continuously pushes his own boundaries. He started young, his working career began in design; as a graphic designer. He went on and opened a design studio called Ditmaster Group dealing with Graphic Design, Web Design, Printing, Computers, Entertainment, Sports, Signage, Architecture, Welding, Construction. As his business skill grew it soon became clear to both Koe D'man and his followers that he was more than just a designer; he was a motivator, or as he likes to put it – A Mentor!

Koe D'man has an innate ability to engage and connect with his audiences or clients and can read the mood and flow of a group with impeccable precision. His presentations for business are informative, lively, full of substance and punctuated with humour. His insights are relevant, usable and sustainable. Over the years his presentations in business have yielded tangible results, touching the minds of those who have heard him present or speak. Koe D'man was designed to be a business man, motivator, inspire, designer. He is living his dream.
